

Good Shepherd Day June 24th

2010

On the 24th June 1863 four young Good Shepherd Sisters arrived without a penny at 'Sandridge Wharf' later called Port Melbourne. Their journey into the unknown had taken them 127 days. Today we remember and celebrate our Good Shepherd Australia beginnings. Today we celebrate being Good Shepherd.

In this time of uncertainty and change, we are challenged to remain positive; challenged to continue to provide hope, compassion and support where often none is present. Sometimes all we have is a conviction that we are right in our work... and then we trust that somehow we will achieve what is needed.

Our history strengthens us in the knowledge of firm foundations. Today our Good Shepherd work holds promise and surprise that can take us down roads, and open doors, that we haven't yet contemplated. If we trust in the Spirit of Good Shepherd... today as yesterday, we can share that trust and make a difference

Good Shepherd Day June 24th 2010

Building on the courage of yesterday
as we face the challenges of today

 Good Shepherd
Mission & Justice

The wonderful work you are doing is a tree of love and life.'

Mary Euphrasia